Reference: Universal Service Fund and Intercarrier Compensation Reform, Docket FCC 11-13

We, the undersigned, members of the West Kentucky Rural Telephone Cooperative Corporation, Inc. (WK&T); greatly appreciate the time and effort that the Federal Communications Commission and its staff (FCC) have devoted over the past two years to understand and document the enormous benefits that broadband service brings to our nation, and to develop plans to modernize the current federal Universal Service Fund (USF) and Intercarrier Compensation (ICC) regimes to enable the more widespread and sustainable delivery of broadband services to consumers.

We are however, concerned, that certain proposals contained in the Notice of Proposed Rulemaking (NPRM) released February 9, 2011 may have the unintended consequence of reducing the availability, affordability, and/or sustainability of broadband services for consumers in the rural areas in which we reside. Any reforms that the FCC undertakes must be carefully crafted to address needed improvements in existing programs, and to ensure that rural consumers have ongoing access to broadband services that are reasonably comparable in price and quality to those available in urban areas.

Among our concerns are the following:

1. As a WK&T consumer, I am able to receive affordable, high-quality broadband service today precisely because regulatory support mechanisms such as federal USF enable the deployment of broadband-capable networks. In fact, the federal high-cost USF program achieves multiple public policy goals, enabling both the availability and maintenance of such networks as well as the adoption of broadband services offered over those networks because they are more affordable. Any abrupt elimination or reduction of this funding, without a reasonable opportunity for carriers to recover investments made in good faith under current rules, would have serious repercussions on the availability, affordability, and/or quality of broadband services for rural consumers.
2. The NPRM contains proposals that would reduce intercarrier compensation rates to zero or near-zero. Artificially low rates would place additional pressure on end-user rates and, absent sufficient and predictable federal revenue recovery mechanism, would threaten continued network investment, operation, and upgrades in rural areas.

In reaching your final decisions on these matters, please insure that the goals of the programs that have brought advanced technical telecommunication and broadband will be sustained, when the new rules are finally adopted.

Sincerely,

CC: Honorable Senator Mitch McConnell

Honorable Senator Rand Paul

Honorable Representative Ed Whitfield
